

Seems funny to me that public interest on something somehow always turns out to be personal interest on something.